Projects:

- Healthcare Application: Developed an android application for healthcare services by using Android Studio and Firebase. MedicAid is such a smartphone application that can be an intelligent companion in monitoring our health condition. This application can also be beneficial in terms of searching for doctors or blood donors in the nearest location. Users can log in/sign up to access the features of this application. This application is online, so an internet connection is required to use this software. Admins can also log in to this application and can access all the private features of this application, such as adding or deleting a user, doctors, or blood donors.

- Promotional Suggestions for Target Customers Using Machine Learning Algorithm: Our project aims to find potential customers. By using the K-means clustering algorithm We've divided a customer dataset into clusters and separated the special clusters for another test set to predict if a new customer is potential or not. So that the promotional cost is reduced.
